

FOLKETS HUS NEWSLETTER

MAY 2025

The pink and the mint t-shirts (the ones with the texts “Share Everything, Burn the Rest” and “Nørrebro's børn hader politiet”) are currently being reprinted. This time we are screen printing them ourselves, which means we can sell them cheaper!

The plans for renovating the first floor are moving forward and the renovation group has several different ideas of how to improve the floor. If you have thoughts, don't hesitate to reach out to us and they will be forwarded to the group.

There is a process starting to de-google Folkets Hus, to make us less reliant on Big Tech for our communication. As part of this, we have created a proton mail that you can reach us on, instead of the old gmail. The address is folkets@protonmail.com. To avoid having to rely on Meta for info about the house, you can keep updated on dukop, mastodon or this newsletter.

There will not be a house meeting in July, and in general the house might be less open during that month than normally.

An activist who was part of squatting the house in 1971 and has been a part of the house ever since has published a book about Folkets Hus. It's an encyclopedia detailing the struggles around Folkets Hus and around Nørrebro from the late 60s to the late 90s, and contains lots of completely unique information about the history of Folkets Hus. The book can not be bought, but there are two copies in the Folkets Hus library that can be read in the house.

Would you like to take a café shift in Folkets Café? You can join one of the existing shifts or form your own if you are three people or more. The shifts are normally from 10-14, 14-18 or 18-22 every day of the week, and you can take shifts every week, every second week or every fourth week. Write us an email, if you wanna join!
